Set Goals

Culture is value. Our belief is very important. If you believe cosmetics make you look good, then you will be always behind looks.

What are our goals? Is it just passing the exams? Just because you want to be a role-model?

Goals can be classified in 3 categories:

- Short term goals: Jobs, exams etc.
- Midterm goals: What after 20-30 years? Setting up a business or getting married.
- Long Term Goals

What will you DO if you have 24 hours left? Being with family, saying sorry to people or donating the body parts?

What did you DO in last 24 hours? Study, sleep, eat, tension, separation, happiness?

What were you doing when Michel Jackson or APJ Abdul Kalam died? Death is unexpected but guaranteed. No one plans to fail but we definitely fail to plan.

Do you know story behind the success of Steve Jobs?

He used to look in the mirror every morning and inquire: “If today was the last day of my life, would I want to do what I am about to do today?” And whenever the answer has been ‘No’ for too many days in a row, I know I that I need to change.

Because of that almost everything – all external expectations, all pride, all fear of embarrassment or failure – these things just fall away in the face of death, leaving only what is truly important. Remembering that you are going to die is the best way I know to avoid the trap of thinking you have something to lose. There is no reason not to follow your heart, your intuition.”

... have the courage
to follow your heart and intuition.
They somehow already know what you truly want to become.
Everything else is secondary.

Steve Jobs, Stanford Commencement Speech

Harvard Business Research says that the people who set a definite goal in their life are little over 3% and, on the contrast these are the people who are the most successful.

Thus, set a definite goal. When you know where you want to head or be, you will find a way to your destination. Be concrete and fixed in your goal. The path will be revealed. It's just a matter of time.

You are special.
Know if the college deserves you!
